
80% of us
want to die at home.

70% of us
are forced to die in hospital.

It's our last choice, but most Nova Scotians never get to make it.

A good death means freedom to choose.

The Nova Scotia Hospice Palliative Care Association is working to bring province-wide palliative care to Nova Scotia.

Find out more at www.nshpca.ca.

PALLIATIVE CARE matters...

Because everyone deserves a good death.

You have to pay to die at home.

It's free
to die at the hospital.

That means most of the 9,000 Nova Scotians who die every year have to make their last choice based on their pocketbook, not their preference. A good death means being able to die at home surrounded by the people you love. The Nova Scotia Hospice Palliative Care Association is working to bring province-wide palliative care to Nova Scotia.

Find out more at www.nshpca.ca.

PALLIATIVE CARE matters...

Because everyone deserves a good death.

Death
doesn't happen 9 to 5,

but most Palliative Care in Nova Scotia does.

When you die and where you live shouldn't determine how much help you get, but it does. Unfortunately, people are dying on palliative care waiting lists in some parts of Nova Scotia. A good death means palliative care services are available whenever and wherever you need them.

The Nova Scotia Hospice Palliative Care Association is working to bring province-wide palliative care to Nova Scotia.

Find out more at www.nshpca.ca.

PALLIATIVE CARE matters...
Because everyone deserves a good death.